

Vigils honor the memory of those killed in St. Louis school shooting one year ago

SERVING THE PUBLIC SINCE 1878 • WINNER OF 19 PULITZER PRIZES

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Wednesday • 10.25.2023

WHERE YOUR STORY LIVES

stltoday.com • $3

Later Tuesday, a public, nondenominational prayer vigil was held at St. Margaret of Scotland church in St. Louis.

Emily Thiele, right, a teacher in the Mehlville School District, holds a candle of hope alongside her husband, Michael, at a public, nondenominational prayer vigil on Tuesday, Oct. 24, 2023, at St. Margaret of Scotland church in St. Louis on the one year anniversary of a shooting on the shared campus of Central Visual and Performing Arts High School and Collegiate School of Medicine & Bioscience in St. Louis. The 2022 shooting left two people dead and six wounded.

Laurie Skrivan, Post-Dispatch

Molly Schiltz, 15, a sophomore at Collegiate School of Medicine and Bioscience lights a candle of hope alongside her mother, Emily, (right) at a public, non-denominational prayer vigil on Tuesday, Oct. 24, 2023, at St. Margaret of Scotland church in St. Louis, on the one year anniversary of a shooting at Central Visual and Performing Arts High School and Collegiate School of Medicine and Bioscience in St. Louis. The 2022 shooting at the two-school campus left two people dead and six wounded. Photo by Laurie Skrivan, lskrivan@post-dispatch.com

Laurie Skrivan, Post-Dispatch

"My granddaughter is a teacher there. I bought this t-shirt last year in support," said John Merideth, who attends a public, non-denominational prayer vigil on Tuesday, Oct. 24, 2023, at St. Margaret of Scotland church in St. Louis, on the one year anniversary of a shooting at Central Visual and Performing Arts High School and Collegiate School of Medicine and Bioscience in St. Louis. The 2022 shooting at the two-school campus left two people dead and six wounded. Photo by Laurie Skrivan, lskrivan@post-dispatch.com

Laurie Skrivan, Post-Dispatch